

Personal Development Magazine Celebrates the Seminal Teachings of Napoleon Hill

October 2009 issue of leading motivational magazine celebrates Hill's timeless principles of success

MILFORD, Conn., September 29, 2009 - RED MAT Media, the publisher of leading motivational magazine Personal Development, today announced that it has dedicated its latest issue to a celebration of the works of Dr. Napoleon Hill, the bestselling author of the influential "Think and Grow Rich," and considered by many to be the father of the modern self-improvement movement. The October 2009 issue of Personal Development coincides with the publication of "Think and Grow Rich: Three Feet from Gold," an inspirational follow-up to the iconic bestseller, written by Sharon Lechter and Greg S. Reid, both of whom are featured in the issue. The issue also includes a feature on "The Principles of Napoleon Hill" written by Judith A. Williamson, the director of the Napoleon Hill Learning Center at Purdue University.

"It's doubtful whether the modern motivational industry would exist if it weren't for Napoleon Hill," said Tim Lyon, co-publisher of Personal Development. "Hill's teachings are so intrinsically linked with the messages of wealth, inspiration, success, and happiness that Personal Development seeks to bring to its readers that hardly an issue goes by without a reference to him or one his great works. More than 100 years following his initial conception of 'Think and Grow Rich,' we chose to honor those teachings. What better way to do it than by featuring one of the premier teachers of Hill's principles, as well as the authors chosen by the Napoleon Hill Foundation to write a modern follow-on to his greatest work."

The newest issue of Personal Development magazine featuring Napoleon Hill is now available on newsstands and is sold at Barnes & Noble, Borders, and other national bookstores. It features specially commissioned cover artwork by Utah-based artist Jacilyn Jameson. Her watercolor of Hill was inspired by a black-and-white photograph taken of Hill at a young age.
